

September 25, 2025: On Hugs versus Hummers (Decrease Both)

<https://www.businessinsider.com/boeing-lost-money-over-trump-demands-for-air-force-one-2022-4?op=1>

Apr 27, 2022, 2:07 PM CT

"Trump was personally involved in the negotiations between Boeing and his administration and even commented about his frustration with their price: "Boeing is building a brand new 747 Air Force One for future presidents, but costs are out of control, more than $4 billion, Cancel order!" Trump tweeted in 2016."

Go listen to Donald at his rallies talk about the deal that he 'negotiated' with Boeing over the cost of the new Air Force One jets.

He has no idea how much they cost and he admits it!

Donald's 'art' of the deal is simply taking an outlandish position and beating people up until he is satisfied that he got the best of them.

This 'technique' is absolutely not the way to engage in serious negotiation in a professionally run business.

I am keenly aware of government funded businesses are maintaining high costs of business in order to maintain higher portions of the federal budget.

Government-funded business have no incentives to reduce their own costs.

In fact, government-funded businesses have the incentive to increase their costs, in order to have a greater discretionary budget into the next year.

After all, who knows what kind of hair-brained punishment Ronald Macdonald will throw at them! It is truly smart to over-budget and under-deliver for the ongoing security of a government funded business (see everything about Elon Musk).

The details:

"The federal government spends trillions of dollars each year to carry out its operations, including national defense, health care, transportation, and interest payments on the federal debt. Congress passes laws that authorize agencies to spend federal dollars for certain purposes. This includes mandatory budget authority, which is generally driven by eligibility rules and benefit formulas, and discretionary budget authority, which is generally provided by annual appropriations acts. Mandatory spending includes programs like Medicare and Social Security, while discretionary spending supports agency programs and operations including most spending on defense, education, housing, and energy.

<https://www.gao.gov/federal-budgeting>

We can clearly see the rising tension in the air (at this very moment in fact as an aircraft does a flyby over our home to exhibit how many tax dollars they waste).

It is obvious that the USA military is chomping up a too large and too significant portion of the American budget. Their budget is discretionary. They are abusing their positions and are abusing their people to gain additional market share in the federal budget. These are the obvious conclusions - but what to do about it?

I am recommending a different type of bargaining style than simply "positioning oneself in the extreme" and fighting for who has more leverage.

I can already describe to anyone that cares to listen how desperate Donald Trump and his team of criminals is to influence the negotiation process. These idiots are literally beating down my door inside of my private home and I don't even represent my own neighborhood in any professional capacity.

These guys are desperately broke, greedy, or both!

The answer is simple: determine the actual costs of running the government and fund it. Period. This idea of swinging dollars back and forth to win votes or approvals is the true problem of modern government.

Our representatives are relying upon Donald Trump to throw his weight around about what he believes something should cost and he has no idea. He has truly proven himself to be ignorant of business as well as law - not to mention morality which we all gave him a free pass on hoping that he at least knew the foundations of proper business.

So, in summary, have your aids determine the real costs of running the government, and fund it. Stop complaining about this program or that program and simply fund the government while we still can. We are in the midst of far more serious issues than pet projects and who is right about what social issues.

There is a strong set of core beliefs that should gain full approval by every member of the legislature. When the final votes are outstanding and discretionary spending boils down to weapons or hugs, cut both. We need less of both.

Thank you for reading. Good luck in your negotiations. And seriously, feel free to shut down the government, repeal 80% of all laws on the books and return 90% of our federal tax dollars to the people. Elon Musk and Donald Trump are far more ridiculous than any transgender program they care to complain about. They are literally spiraling predatory vehicles around my home using those federal tax dollars - as I write this!

Nothing could be more harmful to our country than that type of EXTREMELY IMMORAL BEHAVIOR. Couple their immoral aggressiveness with their immoral sexual lives and you begin to see the real problem in America - and it has nothing to do with how many boys are dressing like girls. The real problem in America is how little those boys understand about what it means to be a good person in 2025.